The Hypocrisy of Allopathy

When the Healing Art Became the Business of Medicine

Jimmie Holman & Justin Allen

Hypocrisy is the claim or pretense of holding beliefs, feelings, standards, qualities, opinions, behaviors, virtues, motivations, or other characteristics that one does not in actual fact hold. It is the practice of engaging in the same behavior or activity for which one criticizes another. In moral psychology, it is the failure to follow one's own expressed moral rules and principles.

HOW We Got Here

WE are OUR Health-Care SOLUTIONS!

By Jimmie Holman

Ed. Justin Allen

Over the last 25 years, my personal experiences and investigations have clearly revealed that the medical and health system in place today is neither what I grew up with nor what I had assumed it to be. Many of the solutions I have found in my searches are far from the realms of what we have been taught and certainly far outside the realm of what has become conventional practice, yet much of what I've found may work far better! For those who honestly search and investigate, I suspect your findings will be similar.

Despite the expressed and chartered purpose and the public's general perception, the US FDA is clearly far from protecting the public interests and is itself a major part of the overall problem.

"The thing that bugs me is that the people think the FDA is protecting them. It isn't. What the FDA is doing and what the public thinks it's doing are as different as night and day."

Dr. Herbert L. Ley former Commissioner of the FDA

¹ After his resignation, in an interview to the New York Times, Dr. Ley warned the public about the FDA's inability to safeguard consumers.

The Electric Human

Jimmie Holman, Steve Haltiwanger and PulsedTech associates take great pleasure in bringing the first formal release of The Electric Human - Electro-Therapeutic Approaches to Disease Management and Health Maintenance. The Electric Human is being presented in a FREE electronic form with individual components being available for easy online reading, download, or even local personal printing.

While initially envisioned for conventional printing and secured e-book commercial sale, as the content was assembled, it became quickly apparent by all involved, that something quite new and different would be needed to satisfy the special needs and requirements of not only the authors, but also the needs of the many individual users and readers. The technical nature of much of the content mandated extensive color illustration, which can become cost prohibitive in printed form and equally restrictive when considering electronic distribution even by e-book services due to the large individual file sizes and page volume. However, the unique architecture and format allows for users to select and retrieve those parts of value and disregard parts of no interest.

Electro-Pollution and Earth Resonance

An Examination and Solution for the Biological Devastation of Our Modern Environment

By Jimmie Holman & Paul Dorneanu

Our Earth is being constantly bombarded with approximately 50 flashes of lightning each and every second. Each flash creates an electromagnetic wave that begins circling the earth within the cavity of our atmosphere between the earth's surface and a boundary of charged particles some 60 miles up. These waves of similar wavelength, combine, increasing in strength, to form a repeating heartbeat known as the Schumann resonance.

In 1952, Prof. Winfried Otto Schumann of the Technical University of Munich predicted and calculated this phenomena which was reliably first measured and validated around the early 1960's.

A growing concern within the medical industry that has been receiving much attention lately is the decreasing effectiveness of our antibiotics and the increasing resistance that many pathogens are developing against them. Because of factors such as excessive and unnecessary use, humans now have almost rendered their antibiotic treatments useless. Germs are becoming more and more resistant over time as more antibiotics are administered and consumed. What's also concerning is the fact that very few new antibiotics are making it to the public market. By the time that the drugs have finally completed clinical trials and approvals, the targeted bacteria have likely already mutated beyond what the new antibiotics can attack and destroy.

During a conference in Copenhagen, Denmark, World Health Organization (WHO) Director-General Dr. Margaret Chan emphasized the seriousness of this issue and its critical implications for the future. She states that instead of moving back to a pre-antibiotic era as some have suggested, we are actually moving towards a “post-antibiotic era...An end to modern medicine as we know it.” Instead of being able to address pathogens as we have in the past, our current pharmaceutical methodology would not work.

As accessibility to affordable quality health care is drastically declining, as cost of medications are becoming prohibitive, as medications are becoming increasingly toxic with alarming side effects and contraindications being the norm rather than the exception, "natural" is increasingly becoming a more attractive, if not the ONLY option for those truly concerned about their own health and wellness.

Pulsed Technologies Research, LLC (USA) in conjunction with Bioenergetics and Pulsed Technologies, SRL (EU), known for their work in resonant frequency and precision pulsed plasmas, is now revealing another area which they have been quietly researching for several years, but not publically shared until now!

While much work remains, Pulsed Technologies Research has been intensively investigating areas not normally associated with simple "frequency" work typically associated with Rife-type technologies, but are delving much deeper into the realm of the actual messages and information being naturally communicated. A bit of background is necessary here to get a fuller understanding of our new direction.
