

A Special Note to Conference Participants

Greetings to all from Dallas, Texas and London, England! It is my great pleasure to once again visit familiar faces as well as meet new ones at this years Middle East Summit for Personal Development along with noted author and lecturer Dr. Jean Houston, author and health researcher Dr. Natasha Campbell-McBride.

I will be joined this season by my close assistant, engineer, and co-author, Mr. Thomas Drake. Among the many issues planned for discussion, we will be talking about and demonstrating PulsedTech's new Transcranial Direct Current Stimulation instrument being distributed by SmartsWay Co. throughout the Mid-East. This simple, convenient, but extremely powerful tool is something that anyone interested in self-improvement and self-development should never be without. Likewise, it could prove to be a "secret tool" to give you that competitive edge in areas of learning, business, or even athletic competition as well as enhance mood and help adjust for that "perfect meditation".

Although not necessary for attendance, we understand that the units will be available to participants for purchase prior to the conference. We highly recommend acquiring the tDCS beforehand because will be providing hands on demonstration and use during the presentation which will be most beneficial to new users.

For those who have the tDCS units, during and immediately after the conference Mr. Drake will be assisting users with custom montages for specific needs wherever possible.

We sincerely look forward to sharing with your great group once again. See you soon live from London!
